DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-47, drawn to a particle analyzer having a source of specimen fluid, a flow cell, a fluid mixing device, and a hollow mixing tube disposed in the fluid path channel, classified in class 356, subclass 338.
- II. Claims 48-51, drawn to a sensor for detecting the presence of fluid in a hollow tube comprising a first sensor circuit having an input for receiving an oscillating signal, an output, and a capacitor, and a second sensor circuit having an input for receiving the oscillating signal, an output, and a reference capacitor, wherein a voltage difference between the first sensor circuit output and the second sensor circuit output varies depending upon the presence or absence of fluid in the portion of the hollow tube between the first and second electrodes, classified in class 356, subclass 441.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the subcombination requires a sensor device having a first sensor circuit and a second sensor circuit, wherein a voltage difference between the first sensor circuit output and the second sensor circuit output varies depending upon the presence or absence of fluid in the portion of the hollow tube between the first and second electrodes not required by the combination. The subcombination has separate utility such as in a sensor device which does require the particulars of the combination (e.g. a particle analyzer having a source of specimen fluid, a flow cell, a fluid mixing device, and a hollow mixing tube disposed in the fluid path channel.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Group II, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
